

The Baritone

For absolute ease of tuning in C, B or dropped B tunings, George chose the clarity of Bastone Walnut and the definition of Sitka Spruce with a newly designed and voiced soundbox to accentuate the baritone voice.

DETAILS

The 700mm scale length means that the neck is a little longer between the nut and the body, but half of that extra length is taken up by the placement of the bridge being further down the body. This provides a balance between playability and tonal response.

The baritone is designed to be played with ease in C, B or dropped B tunings and standard strings fitted are 70 to 16 gauge. Some experimentation on string gauges and tunings may allow more extreme tuning options.
